Director for the Central Intelligence Agency,
c/o Office of the Director
Washington, D.C. 20505

Dear Director:

For the past 20 years, I have collected official items, on Presidents, the largest section started in 1957-1958, deals with late Pres. Kennedy and his family. I have gone into very great detail of the assassinations of late Pres. Kennedy, and Sen.
Robert Kennedy. In this section from 1963- the Warren Report says '64- to 1972 deals with documents
Government official reports, glossy photos, press release data, etc.,.

I will deeply appreciate any new items your office can grant my educational project, photocopies of Hearings texts, glossy photos, government reports, etc.
dating from 1963-1964, that now can be released to the public in 1978. I would appreciate very much any selection of new materials you can grant from the 1978 Assassination Hearings, since passed members of your office have given information. Even a complete copy of the text given by the passed C.I.A. chief will give great interest to my educational project.

Perhaps, on my behalf, you will be so very kind and thoughtful to ask the Director of the new '78 Assassination Hearings, to send my collection any data, photocopies of documents, press releases, glossy photographic prints of old or new exhibits, that can now be released, etc.

My efforts are for education, and many, many hours and years have gone into my efforts to obtain official memorabilia both dealing with every President since late President Hoover to Pres. Jimmy Carter. And my largest section deals with the Kennedy family and the assassinations of Pres. Kennedy, and Sen. Robert Kennedy.

Any items, photocopies of outdated documents, etc. will be displayed with official material I have dealing with the Warren Report of 1964. Any thoughtful help will help "fit-in" my Warren Report items, until my items received on the new 1978 Assassination Hearings.

My project, has been seen on area T.V. two different times, and write-ups have been done 5 different times in our area newspapers. Of recent date my educational exhibit was displayed at our new Public Library, it was to run for 4 weeks, but was held over for four more weeks by request. Some 1,000 persons a week saw the display there. I do hope you will feel my efforts worthy of sending a small selection of outdated items. C.I.A. Reports, etc. dealing with the above subject, and granting my request to ask the '78 Assassination Committee director to send whatever material they can, to me, for the project.

With very deep appreciation and best wishes,

Sincerely,
Dorothy Blackwell.

Great Kennedy Section

After 27 years of spreading knowledge into every nook of the old Bass mansion, Sister Mary Ida, librarian of Saint Francis College, must leave it all soon for a new career.

Her tenure on one of the most picturesque campuses in the country has presented the need for an even larger library structure. But it will be hard to match what has been done to provide an interesting and restful environment for study.

When Sister Ida came here with the college staff in 1944 from Lafayette the institution's library was confined to one room of the manse. Since then it has expanded in an orderly and unique way through all 36 rooms of the building — three floors and sub basement. Most recently it invaded what used to be the college conservatory of music on the top floor — a great domed chamber that held ballroom.

Referred to almost reverently as "the upper room" by a cleaning lady, this vaulted place has been converted into a seventh-heaven of study and directly below it is one of the nation's great collections of Kennedy lore. There has been no serious effort to evaluate it but Sister Ida said it might be called "fabulous."

This has been her special pride since the assassination of President John F. Kennedy and the coverage includes even a sample of the chaminade ultra velvet that lined the president's casket. It discloses, too, the little known fact that there were two caskets.

It is a combined library of everything that has been printed about the Kennedy family and a collection of artifacts that has been made available through the remarkable research of a Fort Wayne man — Donald B. Blackwell.

A Paris newspaper reporting the Kennedy assassination.

"We even have a duplicate of the rifle bullet that killed the president," Sister Ida continued. "We made sure that it wasn't dangerous . . . There is a sample, too, of the Vermont marble used in the Kennedy memorial along with a pictorial record of engraver John Hogenauer of New York, at work on the lettering.

Well indoctrinated as they are in the techniques of library management, the library staff is mystified by the thoroughness of the Blackwell research and its fruits within such a short period of years. Some of his approaches for material were tasteful and directly to the principals involved while others were routed through devious channels — all with effective returns.

A Washington mortuary supplied the names of three technicians who applied the cosmetics to the president's body but declined to hand over their autographs. John Van Hoesen, Edward Strelz and Thomas Robinson worked three hours to prepare the executive's body for viewing.

President Kennedy's body was moved from Dallas to Washington in a bronze casket — somehow it was damaged in shipment and was replaced by a Marsellus mahogany coffin. The disposition of the damaged casket was described as "classified information."

There is an autograph in the collection from the Very Rev. Oscar L. Huber C.M., who gave the last rites to the dying president, along with a copy of his remarks on events of the day.

One may view a picture of the trauma room at Parkland Memorial Hospital in Dallas where surgeons worked frantically over the dying president. There are copies of the true bills issued against Lee Harvey Oswald and Jack (Rubenstein) Ruby.

The Blackwell collection also identifies the names of those who refuge to JFK and the man of his command in the submarine Nautilus after it had passed via tank by enemy fire. Recorded, too, is a visit of Oswald's mother to the Southwestern Historical Max Museum in Dallas to view a figure of her son. The sculptor, she commented, had captured the peculiar set of her son's lips.

The main screen of the Kennedy tomb, 18 feet long, eight and a half feet high and three feet thick, was one of the largest ever quarried. It came from the Imperial Danby quarry which also supplied the stone for the Jefferson Memorial.

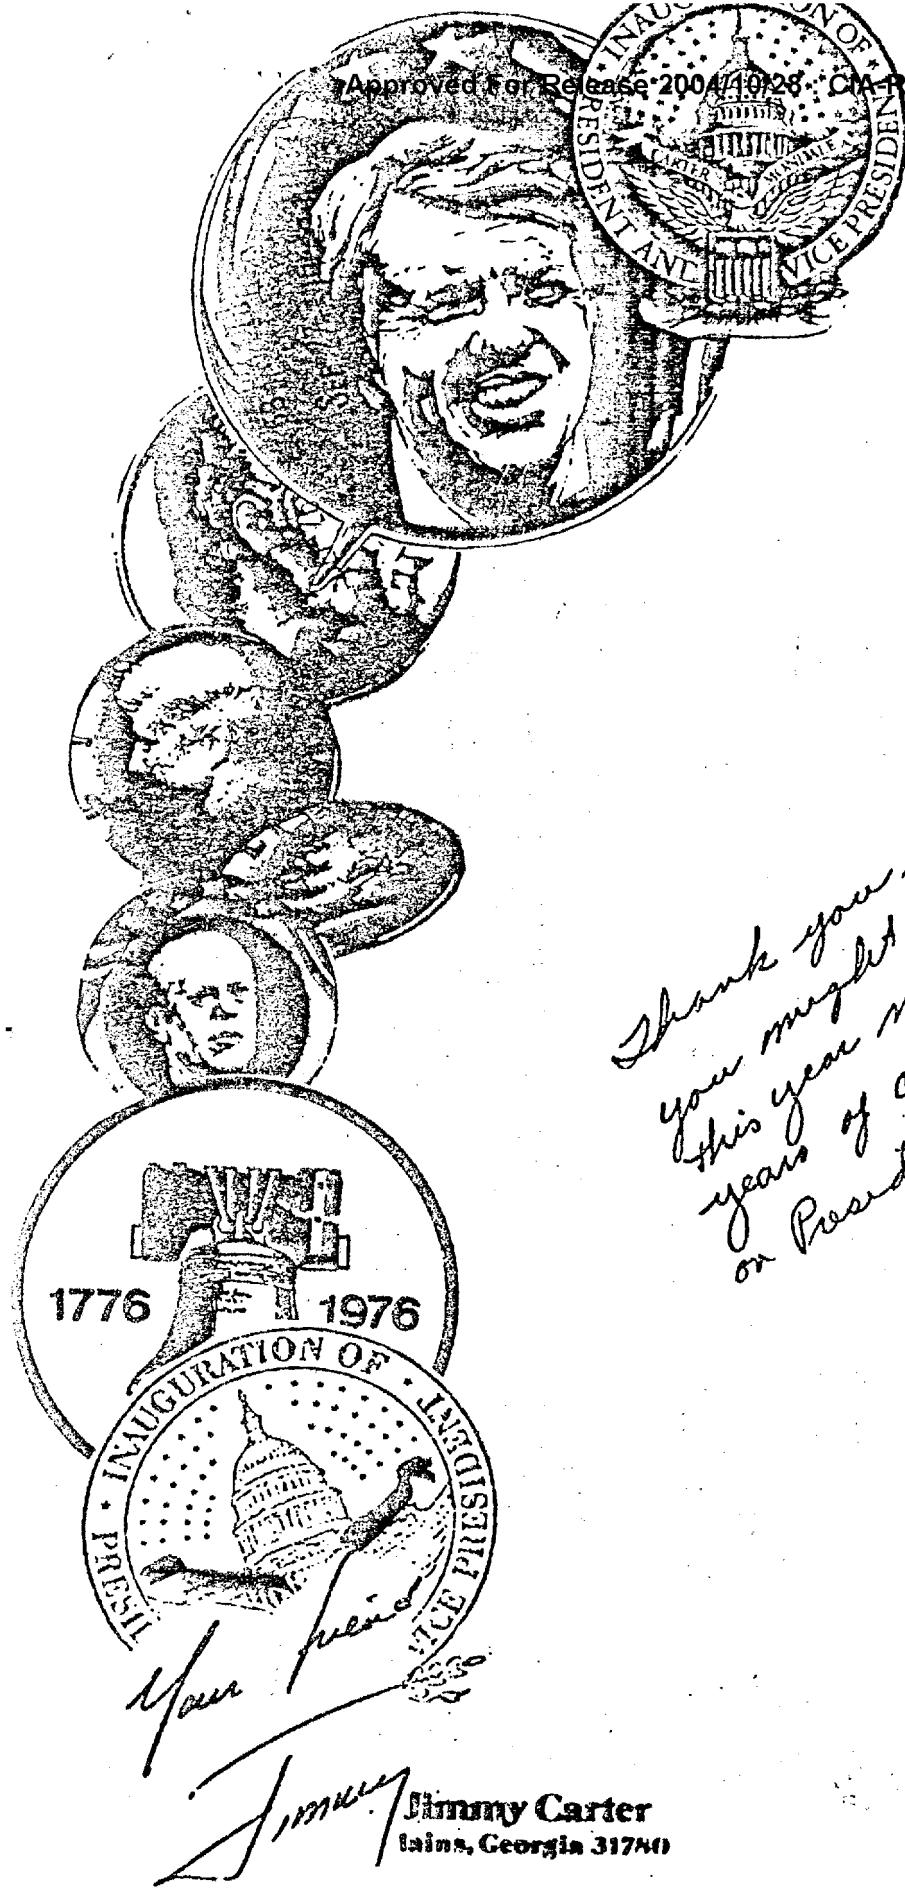

There is a famous Karsy photo of the late President among innumerable others that was autographed by Jacqueline Kennedy. All of the Kennedy signatures in the collection have been verified — a few very close to the president were authorized to sign for him.

When catalogued, the collection may surpass in detail the famed Warren Report.

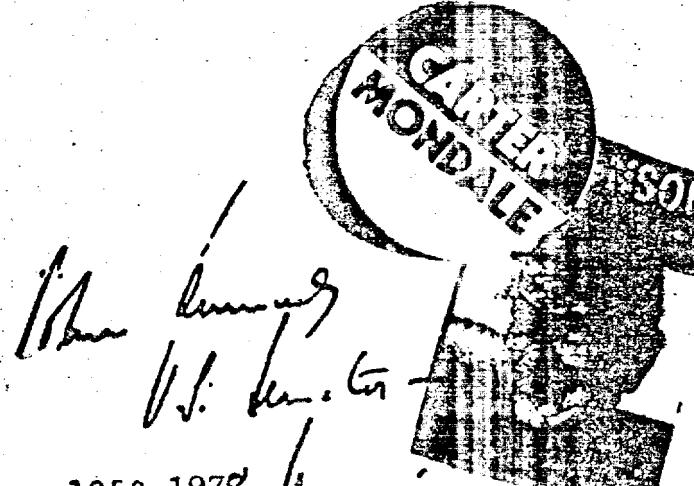

The library so carefully gathered by Sister Ida provides a microscopic view of the Kennedys as a family in politics, along with
